CANADA'S CENSUS

Philadelphia Public Ledger: The results of the decennial census of Canada, taken last June, prove disconcerting to those who prophesied that the population of 5,371,315 reported by the census of 1901 would be found to have grown to more than 8,000,000 by 1911. The population of the Dominion, according to the statistics at hand, is 7,151,869.

The population of Pennsylvania alone by the census of 1910 was 7,665,111. The inhabitants of the New England States numbered 6,552,681. Ohio and Indiana taken together had 7,467,997. The most populous province of the Dominion is Ontario, with 2,519,902; New Jersey has a population of 2,537,167, and there are nine other States that exceed the figures for the Canadian province. The largest Canadian city is Montreal, with 466,197 inhabitants. Ten cities of the United States are larger. The second city in size is Toronto, with a population of 376,240. Buffalo has 425,000.

It should be noted that the total population of the Dominion, half a million less than that of the Keystone State, is spread over an expanse territory greater than that of the United States. The total land area of Canada is 3,619,818 square miles, whereas the entire area of the United States, including Alaska and Hawaii, is but 3,567,563 square miles. In other words, a population considerably less than that of Pennsylvania occupies a region approximately 80 times as large.

The administrative and economic problems of so sparsely settled a territory, it is obvious, must differ widely from those of a country with about 26 persons to the square mile as compared with the 1 1/2 of Canada.

trucks. The Acme company now has four trucks in service, the first having been purchased a year ago last August.

Packard trucks are now being used in 144 lines of trade.

In connection with the purchase of a Packard squad wagon by the Board of Public Safety in Indianapolis, Fire Chief Coats declares that this is only the beginning and that all of the horses must go.

The reinforced concrete construction for the two additions to the Packard truck shops is practically completed. Each of the two new wings equals the size of the present truck plant. Machinery is being installed in the additions to the Service buildings.

HAWAII'S SCHOOLS

Continued from page 2. County of Hawaii, including the seven supervisors, the county clerk, the county attorney, the treasurer, the auditor and the sheriff.

The proposition of placing the public school administration under the counties has several times been mooted. It will without doubt be a live question in the near future. In spite of the fact that it believes that the county administration could not but materially improve on such utterly mad financing as that now carried by the department, the Tribune believes that the present system, antiquated and full of faults as it is, is preferable to county control which would lead to the injection of the kind of petty politics which has ruined the police departments, when the teachers would fall from the frying pan into the fire. Nevertheless, if the plan to place the schools under the counties should meet with success, those who believe in territorial control should place the principal blame for the change on the department itself.

Automobile Notes

The Packard Truck.

In the purchase of fifty Packard trucks by the Acme Tea Company of Philadelphia, there is recorded what is said to be the largest single order for motor vehicles ever placed in the United States if not in the world. The order was booked by the Packard Motor Car Company of Philadelphia. It calls for thirty three-ton trucks and twenty of the one and one-half to two-ton size.

The purchase represents in round numbers an investment of $150,000. It follows closely upon the Packard Motor Car Company's announcement of a quantity price on motor
